THOUSANDS LINE STREETS TO WITNESS LARGEST HALLOWE'EN
PARADE TOWN HAS EVER STAGED

Hundreds of School Children in Fantastic Garb Take Part.

FLOATS ARE AN ADDED FEATURE

Some of Them Particularly Elaborate; Minions Out in Force and Holiday Spirit is in the Air; Lots of Bands and Plenty of Amusement Afforded.

In point of crowds, the excellence of the parade and the opportunities for a general free-for-all good time, last night's Halloween celebration probably was the best ever conducted in Connellsville. Those in charge, who have had opportunity for closely observing every one of the fine annual celebrations, say that there never was a larger crowd and never so many minions on the streets.

At times it was an absolute impossibility for the parade to continue, the crowd surging onto the streets, leaving only a narrow lane through which the line could not have passed. The police and volunteer firemen, assisted by the two automobiles which led the long string of masqueraders and floats, had a strenuous time cutting a way through the mass of humanity so that the parade could move.

The spirit that pervades all Halloween celebrations here was not lacking. There were thousands of men and women, boys and girls in all sorts of fantastic costumes. The dignity that might be significant of a holiday hearing during the other 365 days of the year was flung aside and he donned some sort of a funny costume and had the time of his life seeing if his friends knew him. Many a matron donned her husband's clothes and many a girl put on her brother's or vice versa. Besides the usual male and female impersonations there were a lot of pretty and fantastic costumes on which the wearers had spent much thought and gone to considerable expense.

The floats were the best ever seen in a parade here. They embraced new ideas, well carried out, and in starting, due to the late arrival of some of the organizations, and it was pretty hard on the littlest school children who had to stand around in the cold for so long. They didn't seem to mind it, however.

The parade was led by Chief Marshal W. E. DeBolt and his aides, followed by two automobiles containing Councilmen L. L. West, James Guyan and John Duggan. One of the cars, that driven by G. E. Albrecht, was brightly illuminated with electric lights inside of Halloween pumpkins.

A large number of floats on the parade, this had the word "Overland" cut in it. The Connellsville Military Band, numbering close to 40 men, was next in line and after it came the floats, then the school children, other organizations and the individual minions.

A novelty stunt, not on the program, was pulled off on the West Side where the parade contingents marched under the Western Maryland station. Three floats lined up side by side and while Lester Crawford, who impersonated Ben Hur, sang "Memories" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," eight little boys and girls went through a pretty drill on the adjoining float. The little folks who took part in this were: Renee McGuire, Sonny Hays, Miss McGarvey, Harry Franks, Master Munk, Catherine Herwick, Thomas Cummings and Clara Horwick.

Four floats designed and built by George Fritchard attracted much favorable comment. They were: The boat scene from Ben Hur, (Royal Ice Cream Company), with Lester Crawford and Paul Brickman; Miss Stillwagon, Fred Stillwagon, Margaret Jean Stillwagon, Miss Harbaugh and Charles Hurley representing the various characters; Eddie Norman, colored, played ragtime in his best style on the piano on the float.

The birth of the American flag, (Harry Dull), with Miss Cypher, as Betty Ross and four Boy Scouts and six young women as attendants. Springtime, (Rapport-Featherman Furniture Company), an interpretation of the "sweetest story ever told," this contained the youngsters mentioned above as assisting Lester Crawford in his song numbers.

The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe, (Templeton's), with Edgar Wilkey's children impersonating the children.

The Macabees' Beneficent Association made a fine showing with their float depicting the joys of insurance and the horrors of lack of such protection. The ladies of the Macabees dressed in line dresses as Red Cross nurses. They deserved the prizes they received. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the B. R. T. were dressed in overalls and carried railroaders' lanterns. They made a fine showing.

YOUNGEST MINION IS LUTHER H. COLLINS,
ONLY 17 MONTHS OLD

The youngest minion that appeared on the streets last night was Luther Hoffman Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Collins, who is only 17 months old. Young Luther was dressed up as an Indian and although he was a little too young to get in the parade he had the time of his life romping about near his father's drug store.

Rose Lee Cream Company had its usual excellent float. This time a group of little girls showed how delicious the firm's product is by eating it as they rode in the parade.

Connellman M. E. Pryce made a big hit with his costume. He had built a monstrous duck around him and he waddled about in impersonation of a "fame duck" led by his kiddies, Marvin and Rosalind, at the end of long ribbons.

Harold Horner won a prize of $2 for the best impersonation of a candidate for President. He was in evening dress with a Hughes mustache and whiskers. He received as much of an ovation as times as if he were the real man. The judges stationed along the line of march picked out the prize winners and gave them tags. The minions thus honored claimed their prizes at Bishop's restaurant. The following have been awarded so far:

Best Male: Joseph Sam, $1.50, Robert Smith, $1.50, Condit, $1.50, W. M. Goodwin, $1.50, Albert McCormick, $1.50, Everett Miller, $1.50, George Lee, $1.50, Fairly, $1.50, Thelma Snyder, $1.50, Martha and George Washington, $1.50, Ruth and Virginia Snyder, $1.50, James Strickland, $1.50, Robert Smith, $1.50, Charles E. Hughes, $1.50, Harold Horner, $1.50, Paper Dress, Dorothy Worthington, $1.50, Animal Makeup, $1.50, John Souther, $1.50, Mrs. Paisley, $1.50, Joseph Donnell, $1.50, Fraternal organization in flag, $1.50, Ladies' Auxiliary, $1.50, Large unit, $1.50, formed fire company, $1.50, South Connellsville, $1.50, Best Calumpan band, $1.50, Third Ward section.

The prizes for the largest school in line cannot be awarded until Monday when the principals submit the number of pupils they had in line.

Among the other minions who got a lot of recognition for their clever makeup were: Thomas Hyatt as an old woman with a boy on her back; Edgar Smith and W. O. Adams as Uncle Sams; Joe Hood as a Frenchman; William Perry in a female impersonation; Miss Mabel Rosenblum as a gentleman in evening dress.

FAYETTE COUNTY; WILL SPEAK
AT UNIONTOWN RALLY TONIGHT*HUGHES SOUNDS WARNING NOTE

Declares Repetition of Business Depression May be Expected at Close of War.

By Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—Charles E. Hughes today told an audience of farmers here that America could have neither peace nor security until she was prepared to maintain unflinchingly the known right of her citizens on land and ship.

"Our opponents have told us in very explicit terms," he said, "that the constitutional rights of Americans should follow them throughout the world and that wherever they were lawfully following their business they should have full protection for their lives and property. That principle, I believe in, but performance has not matched promises."

"We shall have no peace, no security, unless we maintain our self respect, unless we have the esteem and friendship of all nations, unless the American flag means justice, courteous treatment, but firm and unflinching insistence upon American rights with respect to lives, property and commerce on land and sea throughout the world."

"Our opponents told us they were going to reduce the high cost of living," he said, "We now have the higher cost of living. They have a certain policy to which for generations they have adhered. I do not regard it as an American policy. It is very obviously calculated to the economic needs at this time."

"We have now a temporary prosperity due to the abnormal conditions brought about by the war. But what are the conditions we have had? In it possible that we can now forget the condition that existed in this country before the war? Consider the business depression before the war. Consider the serious condition with respect to many enterprises throughout the country. Plants were closed; others were on reduced time; thousands of men were walking the streets of our large cities looking for work. It was a day of soup houses. Mr. Hughes declared that to prevent 'repetition' of business depression when the war ends it would be found necessary to apply the sound Republican doctrine of protection to American industry."

BIG RALLY HELD AT SMITHFIELD

Strong Speeches are Made in Behalf of the Republican Ticket Before an Enthusiastic Audience; Perryopolis Also Has Big Turnout.

"If it stopped," said James J. Keegan, former Democratic Assemblyman, at the big Republican rally in Smithfield last night, "the Democrats have no cause to hybrid me. I have the best example in the world. President Wilson, who has flopped on both sides of every question with which he has had to deal."

That was the beginning of a forceful address which brought applause from every man who heard it. Mr. Keegan's speech was the feature of the rally.

Mr. Keegan enumerated President Wilson's many changes of policy. A somewhat unusual feature brought out by Mr. Keegan was the fact that President Wilson declared in 1912 that he stood for the presidential primary and that if elected he would work for the direct nomination principle.

No word has been heard of the presidential primary since Mr. Wilson was elected.

Mr. Keegan denounced what he called Mr. Wilson's cowardice in the Mexican trouble. He told how England has treated our nation, capturing our vessels, seizing our mails, and closing ports to us. "Wilson has let them do it," said Mr. Keegan. "I think he is blinded to the higher ideals of American citizenship."

Again referring to Mr. Wilson's vacillation and uncertainty, Mr. Keegan said, "He has been right at least half the time, however, for he has been on both sides of every question."

After the speechmaking, Mr. Keegan was warmly greeted by the Smithfield people at the rally, which was a success in every sense of the word. The attendance was large, and the audience seemed to be thoroughly in accordance with the views expressed by the speakers. There was no heckling of the orators, and when a particularly telling point was made, there was no lack of applause. A "get-together" session followed the rally proper, and the staunch Republicans of Smithfield seemed very glad to meet the Uniontown campaign men and to talk things over with them.

William Burton of Smithfield, chosen chairman of the meeting, introduced as the first speaker, A. E. Jones. Mr. Jones dwelt mainly on the labor question, and pointed out very plainly that President Wilson is not the laboring man's friend. President Wilson in the important affairs of the nation.

"I want to see a man in the chair who is not too proud to fight, if necessary," Mr. Jones, a Uniontown business man, said at the beginning of his talk.

"We should either have intervened in Mexico," said Mr. Jones, "or we should not have intervened. We have done a little of both. In so doing, our country has been humiliated and our flag discolored."

Mr. Jones dwelt on Wilson's false friendliness to labor. He cited the statements made by President Wilson, while president of Princeton, and while president of the United States, for votes. Professor Wilson declared for the open shop. There was as much danger from organized labor, he said, as from organized capital. The Chinese immigrants were more desirable to Professor Wilson than those from Europe.

E. Dale Field of Smithfield was called on to say a few words and expressed his regret that a small number of railroad men should be allowed to dictate to the whole country.

Joseph W. Ray, Jr., urged the voters to get down to business and think out the issues of the campaign for themselves. Mr. Ray exposed the tariff commission of the Democrats.

"They say that the tariff has been taken out of politics," Mr. Ray said. "Don't let them fool you. It can't be done. The constitution provides that every revenue bill must originate in the House of Representatives. The tariff commission can only make recommendations. It is merely a practical plan of Mr. Wilson to humbug the people on the eve of election."

Mention of the names of Knox, Keegan, and Crow by Mr. Ray evoked great applause from the audience.

E. D. Brown, formerly of Smithfield, now of Uniontown, said a few words to his old friends. He gave a brief history of the Republican party during his life of 60 years, and pointed with pride to the distinguished men within its ranks. As Mr. Brown said, the meeting was a perfectly practical one. Every speaker talked of relevant things, as if arguing a case before a jury. The issues of the campaign were discussed for the benefit of Smithfield voters, and the Republican people clearly brought home.

TO REDEDICATE REFORMED CHURCH

Congregation to Celebrate Completion of Extensive Improvements.

Extensive improvements to the Trinity Reformed Church have been completed and rededication services will be conducted tomorrow. Dr. A. J. Heller of Greensburg, who organized the church and was its first pastor, will return and join with the congregation in celebrating the reopening of the church. Sermons will be preached at morning and evening services by Rev. J. M. Mullen, D.D., of Baltimore. The dedicatory service will be conducted in the morning by the pastor, Rev. C. E. Wagner and holy communion will also be observed.

Between $800 and $900 was spent upon the church, labor and materials approximating $200 being donated by members of the congregation. A partition between the parsonage and the church auditorium was cut away and a balcony 71 feet long and 14 feet wide was built on the south and east sides of the building, giving the auditorium a total seating capacity of about 100. The balcony is divided into seven class rooms for use of the Sunday school, each equipped with blackboards and closets. Two stairways connect it with the lower floor.

Two new windows have been put in to light up the new part. The primary Sunday school room and the pastor's study were refurnished, folding chairs were installed in the balcony and new lighting fixtures will arrive shortly.

DEMANDS FOR STEEL

Insistent From Ship Builders, Railroad and Car Builders.

American steel mills are still being besieged by builders of ships and of railroad equipment for material needed in the construction of boats, cars, locomotives and bridges, contracts for which have been placed within the last few days. The aggregate is impressive, coming upon the heels of the heavy purchases recently made of bars, plates and shapes.

Car orders that have just come to the surface require over 100,000 tons of steel. Locomotive builders need 20,000 to 25,000 tons of rolled and forged products. Railroad bridges and repair shops placed and pending call for about 20,000 tons of structural shapes.

It Costs Only 1 Cent. Save today's paper and buy an extra one for Kalmuck's ad. on page 5 will appear but once—today only.—Adv.

CEMENT FOR MEXICO

Concessions Granted American Firm to Supply High Property.

JATREZ, Mexico, Oct. 27.—Mexico plans to rebuild her revolution-shattered industries upon a firm foundation. With the restoration of peace in the republic the thousands of factories, mills, shops and stores which have been burned, wrecked or partially destroyed by artillery fire or by the work of the bombing clouds which are always a part of a Mexican army in the field, are to be rebuilt.

The representatives of a large Pacific coast cement manufacturing company, recently visited Andres Garcia, inspector general of consulates for the Carranza government and General Francisco Gonzales, commander of the Jauzeo garrison, and consulted with them regarding the erection of a $1,000,000 cement plant in Jauzeo to utilize the great shale beds which are to be found at the foot of the Jauzeo mountains. This material has been tested and found to be good for cement making. The supply is said by experts to be inexhaustible and the shale beds are located near enough to the railroad to make haulage costs low.

The representative of the American cement company is being given every encouragement by the Carranza of Jauzeo. They realize the importance of having such a plant on the border where its product can be shipped to all points in the interior at a low cost. While many of the buildings in Mexico are made of brick and stone, concrete having been little used in construction work in the interior because of the comparative scarcity of cement. With the construction of a plant to manufacture cement here, many Mexican laborers who are now forced to go to the United States in search of employment will be employed, and because of the lower cost of labor in this country, it will be possible to sell the finished product of the plant at a much lower rate than that prevailing in the United States, the promoters say.

PIMPLES COVERED FACE AND NECK

Formed Scales. Were Very Sore and Itchy. Hard and Red. Very Much Disfigured. In One Month

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My face and neck were covered with pimples, being bothered for years, but exposure to cold weather and using cheap soap made them much worse. I was so much so they formed scales which were very sore and itchy and caused a lot of embarrassment. The pimples were rather small, hard and red and would fester and come to a head, but would not heal. My face was very much disfigured for the time being."

"I heard of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I began using them and in one month my face was free from any disfigurement. I was healed." (Signed) F. E. Johns, 522 6th St., Pittsburg, Pa., July 16, 1915.

At the Theatres

SOISSON THEATRE.

"HUSBAND AND WIFE"—The five reel World feature will be shown today with an all star cast, Ethel Clayton and Holbrook Blinn playing the leading roles. It is a thrilling domestic drama. Dick Baker is a bank cashier in financial difficulties. Doris, his wife, with no help for finance, continually overdraws her account. Dick, in an endeavor to keep up, has been playing the stock market with "borrowed" securities from the bank. Schmidt, a director of the bank, has gone in with Dick on some of his speculations, and in return Doris is expected to receive Mrs. Schmidt. Pat Allison, a young millionaire, is in love with Doris, but is on the level. While Allison is visiting Doris Mrs. Schmidt arrives, but leaves in a fury, telling her husband that Doris is on the level.

entertaining Allison. As a consequence Schmidt refuses to go in a business deal with Dick. See this interesting drama, "The Wrath of Cactus Moore," a three reel Gold Seal drama featuring William Mong and Peggy Conroy. Mong in this play takes the part of a "rascal," holding back the planks who never outgrows the wildness of his youth. He cannot forgive an insult that he suffered years before, but at last is tamed by the affection of his enemy's daughter. A picture that radiates the nerve and vim of the west. Room Rent and Romance is a special Victor comedy with Victor Potel. Monday, the first episode of the thrilling serial, "The Sliding Shadow," featuring Grace Darmond and Ralph Keilard. Grace Darmond in the fifth chapter of "Beatrice Fairfax."

"THE JUNGLE CHILD"—A five reel Triangle Ray-Bee production starring Dorothy Dalton, and a two part Keystone comedy are today's attractions. Like all Triangle productions, "The Jungle Child," the action is carried on with appropriate and picturesque settings and when the admirable interpretation of Miss Dalton and her support is added, the picture's merit becomes large. The play is well handled and well interpreted. Miss Dalton is magnificent and is superb in her role. Manager Wagner has secured excellent attractions for next week. Monday night Ethel Stevens and an all star cast will be seen in "The Wheels of Justice," a five part Metro production. Tuesday's feature will be "A Woman's Way," starring Pauline Frederick, and "Gloria's Romance," with Billie Burke in the leading role. Wednesday Lillian Gish will appear in "Diana of the Pool," Thursday Charlie Chaplin will be starred in "The Pawnshop," his late comedy success. Friday Margaret Clark, the idol of the screen, will be seen in "Little Lady Elton," a five part Paramount attraction. Thursday, November 16, "The Ne'er Do Well," with Kathleen Williams, and other well known screen stars will be presented.

HAVE COLOR IN YOUR CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

Facts Versus Fallacies

FACT is a real state of things. FALLACY is an apparently genuine but really illogical statement or argument.

THAT liquor is the cause of poverty has so often been the FALLACIOUS cry of the Prohibitionist that it may be interesting to show by FACTS that the very opposite is the case, and that Prohibition would, if enforced, undoubtedly cause poverty.

THE saloon is the clearing house for brewer and distiller. Abolish the saloon, and at once national prohibition would throw 1,225,000 men out of employment. It would destroy investments aggregating $1,500,000,000. It would endanger the jobs of millions of men now working for decent salaries. It would bring on an industrial panic.

FARMERS cannot afford to support prohibition. The farmers of the United States receive from the liquor interests about $200,000,000 a year. It requires the labor of 300,000 farmers to raise these products. If robbed of their market the farmers' purchasing power will fall $200,000,000 a year, and this would be felt by every mill, mine and factory in the land.

PROHIBITION is a menace to the prosperity of the entire nation. Personal Liberty on the drink question does not regulate the wages of labor. If the "drys" would spend a little more time showing the workers how to get their share of the wealth they create, instead of trying to curtail the liberty of the working-man, they would hit Old Man Poverty a hard blow.

THAT it is a FALLACY to hold that the saloon is the cause of poverty is proven by FACTS which show that the saloon, which distributes the output of brewer and distiller, contributes in no small way to the employment of over a million persons.

Prohibition, if Enforced, Would Undoubtedly Cause Poverty

Liquor Interests and Allied Trades Pay $200,000,000 Wages Annually

THE liquor interests and allied trades pay in wages to their help, $200,000,000 annually. These wages are spent for dry goods, groceries, clothing and farm products. Reduce the purchasing power of these workers $200,000,000 a year by destroying the liquor business and there must follow a corresponding reduction in all lines of business.

FARMERS cannot afford to support prohibition. The farmers of the United States receive from the liquor interests about $200,000,000 a year. It requires the labor of 300,000 farmers to raise these products. If robbed of their market the farmers' purchasing power will fall $200,000,000 a year, and this would be felt by every mill, mine and factory in the land.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES.

ATTENTION TO
STATE TICKETImportance of Electing All
Nominees of Republicans.

COMBINATION OF STRENGTH

Electors Should be Sure and Not Forget That Men Nominated by Q. O. P. Stand for Efficiency, Integrity and Honesty in Public Service.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—With attention focused largely on the presidential contest, many voters of Pennsylvania naturally are disposed to give but little thought to the candidates for other offices on the several tickets. This is a mistake. Pennsylvania elects this year a United States Senator, an Auditor General, a State Treasurer, four Congressional Representatives, twenty-five State Senators, and the entire membership of the House of Representatives. For electors to overlook this contest and devote their attention solely to the fight for president is, of course, poor judgment.

The Republican party need make no apologies for the position of its ticket. From every standpoint, it is just as strong as any ticket ever put up by the party in Pennsylvania, and this is saying a great deal. Hon. Philander C. Knox, the candidate for United States Senator, has already served in three cabinets of presidents; the candidate for Auditor General, Hon. Charles J. Snyder, is a lawyer of prominence, industry and ability; the candidate for State Treasurer, Harmon M. Kephart, is a man of capacity, integrity and courage; the four candidates for Congressmen are all strong, not only by reason of individual popularity, but because they stand for the big thing in American statesmanship—a tariff that will protect American industries. The same, of course, might be said of the congressional nominees in the several districts.

G. O. P. voters should not fail to look into the legislative situation, and if they do they will send to Harrisburg Republican legislators. During the legislative session hardly a day passes during which a measure that will directly affect the welfare of Pennsylvania, does not come before the lawmaking body. The state being

WHAT ONE BIG MAN THINKS OF ANOTHER.

President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown university is a pretty live wire who keeps abreast of the times, has keen powers of observation and knows a good man when he sees him. Here is what he has to say about the Republican candidates for the presidency:

"I have known Justice Hughes intimately since we were students together at Brown and have seen him a thousand times at work and at play. No man of our generation has finer combination of character and intellect. Absolutely fearless, unselfish, loyal to American ideals, he is worthy of a nation's trust."

"All his friends know that behind the dignity of bearing is a rich fund of humor and good fellowship. Whether he is climbing a mountain, reading novels, playing with his children, resisting a political lobby or delivering the opinion of the supreme court, he is ever the same rugged, democratic, fair minded American. His varied experience has given him wide horizon and sympathy with every aspect of American life."

"He possesses two qualities rarely found together—the judicial temper and the capacity for swift and resolute action. Under his administration the fog which now besets many public questions would be cleared away."

"His penetrating mind goes to the heart of any subject he touches and strips off the irrelevant at once. Such a mind is peculiarly needed amid the intricate problems that now confront America."

"We need more than good intentions. We need clear vision, sound judgment, strong will, unhesitating decision. In short, we need Charles E. Hughes."

overwhelmingly Republican, every one holds the Republican party responsible for the progress and development of the commonwealth. The Republican legislator is therefore more anxious and has more at stake to support with enthusiasm all matters pertaining to the welfare of Pennsylvania than men of other parties.

Next Legislature.

In a recent issue of the Philadelphia Sunday Dispatch, there appeared an interesting article on the work of the next legislature. Colonel James L. Hall, the editor and manager of the Dispatch, thus wrote there is no better posted man in Pennsylvania politics, said among other things:

"That the next Legislature will be overwhelmingly Republican seems an assured fact. The session of 1917 will have to face much constructive legislation. The outlines of the program are already beginning to be apparent. Some of the issues have been thrust forward by the logic of events, while others have been precipitated by executive action. Still others have been the result of preliminary work that has been done by special interests that are desirous of repealing or modifying legislation enacted at the last two sessions of the legislature."

"The next Legislature will be absolutely confined to the actual revenues of the state. There will be no big balance carried into the new year that can, as in previous years, be depended upon to bridge the gap if more money is appropriated than the tax laws bring into the treasury."

Only Two Courses Open.

"The state is confronted by the fact that there is a legitimate use to which every dollar available can be put. Confronted by this obvious situation, only two courses are open. Either taxes must be increased in some quarter or present income must be utilized to better advantage than previously."

"The labor interests of the state respect legislation broadening the scope of the continuation schools. Legislation in the interests of continuous highway building is needed. Unless every effort is put forth to make the dollar do a dollar's worth of work, it will prove hard spending to find money for pressing highway needs."

"Other matters that should come before the legislature are the problems of forest conservation and the questions of water supply and flood regulation. The state loses $7,000,000 a year as a result of forest fires."

Of Courses.

"Why do you always have to be examined by a doctor before you can get life insurance?"

"I presume the company is anxious to know whether or not you are strong enough to carry it."—Detroit Free Press.

Striped skirts still have a strong vogue and are shown in various widths, the blazer and awning stripes being by far the strongest call. Novelty striped yokes and a few checks are included in some of the latest models.

LIBERTY.

God grants liberty only to those who love it and are always ready to guard and defend it.—Daniel Webster.

SELECTING SEED CORN.

Are you going to wait till spring to pick out seed ears for your next corn crop? Although this may be a custom, the experience of more successful growers shows that seed selected from standing corn in the fall yields more than corn taken from the shock or crib. By full selection the best ears growing under ordinary conditions may be chosen. By selecting seed either at husking time or from the crib the grower picks out ears that grow on unusually fertile spots or often with a single plant in a hill. The Ohio experiment station has obtained gains in yield of more than three bushels per acre by selecting seed in the fall from standing corn.

RAISING DRUG PLANTS.

Culture is a Distinct Specialty and Not Generally Profitable.
(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

Although many drugs, spices and oils consumed in this country in large amounts in the aggregate have risen enormously in price, the culture of such plants is not followed by drug plant specialists of the United States department of agriculture as pointing out, that profit will accrue to any one who may undertake to produce the plants domestically. The culture of such plants is as distinct a specialty as the growing of choice flowers to supply the fancy floral trade. It is questionable whether persons even highly skilled in producing staple crops could acquire really specialized knowledge necessary to the successful production of drug plants.

Of even greater importance, however, is the fact that the total amount of drug plants that can be consumed in this country in any year is very small compared with our consumption of any of the staple crops. Overproduction in the case of drugs is more serious than in the case of staple crops because staple crops such as corn and grain if not sold can be used at home for food or for feeding stock or chickens. The drug plant, however, is useless to the grower unless a drug manufacturer will buy it for use in medicine.

CORNSTALK DISEASES.

Rotation of Corn Advocated by Iowa Experiment Station.

Diseases of cornstalks and roots cost the Iowa farmers annually. This is the reason the Iowa experiment station recently published a bulletin on cornstalks and corn root disease. The station discovered a new disease which is characterized by falling of corn where the stalks are broken close to the joints. Such plants contained only small ears or they were barren. When a farmer's attention was called to this condition the statement was usually made that the stalks were blown over by the wind or that the trouble was caused by the corn root rot caused by the corn. The disease attacks roots, stalks and ears. It has not been determined whether all of these diseases are caused by the same organism or not. In many fields the corn was broken off at, below or above the joint. The plith or soft rot caused by the corn root rot was destroyed and was brownish or in some cases reddish in color. The fibers were soft and easily broken off. The station discovered three kinds of stalks attacking the kernels, husks and cobs.

The only rational treatment is rotation of corn. Corn should never follow corn where this disease exists, since the fungus remains where the corn is planted in the same field the next year. Young plants will become infected. It is a wise plan to rent corn with fertilizer at the rate of one pint to forty gallons of water for fifteen months.

The Iowa station received numerous complaints last year in regard to a disease in cattle which goes under the name of cornstalk disease, or fungus poisoning. It was so severe that veterinarians advised not to feed cornstalks. While it is not known that the fungus here described is connected with this disease in cattle, due to feeding on moldy corn and fodder, there are good grounds for believing that these molds are toxic.

The Woman in the Case.

A mother-in-law had stayed in often with her daughter as to cause a quarrel with the husband.

One day she found her daughter weeping in the drawing room.

"What's the matter? Gracious me, don't say that George has left you!" she exclaimed.

"He has," replied the young wife tearfully.

"Then there's a woman in the case?" mother asked, her eyes lighting up expectantly.

"Who is it?"

"Xoni!"

Making Love.

A girl of seventeen once asked a gruff widow:

"When a man makes love to a girl, is it a sign he wants to marry her?"

"Yes, my child," the gruff widow answered grimly, "and when he stops making love to her, it is usually a sign that the marriage has taken place."—Detroit Free Press.

"Oh," she remonstrated. "You should not move." He forced a laugh between his clenched teeth. "No, it's not that I thought—only a scratch. All right now, except for a little dizziness. I have been imposing on your sympathy—Did you see where the shot came from? I must go and run out the rascal!" The girl grasped his wrist and sprang up away from him. "You shall not go," she declared. "I'll save her away the moment you feel."

CHAPTER IX.

The Conquette. Unable to endure the jar of a trot or gallop, Hardy urged the mare to tier fastest walk. They had gone less than a mile when a horseman came leaping up the slope from Slouk creek. "It is Mr. Vandervyn," said Hardy in an even tone.

"Yes," she replied. She handed back the glasses, but did not look at him until Vandervyn rode up. The young man's face was flushed, as if he had been drinking. When he bowed up before her, he was exceedingly struck with Hardy's appearance. He scarcely heeded Marie's joyful greeting.

"What's the matter, captain?" he exclaimed. "You're as white as a ghost—and your head isn't right. You must have been a little overdone." "Hit off an accident. Not serious," replied Hardy.

"It could not well have been closed," said Marie. "Captain Hardy has been shot." "Shot?" cried Vandervyn. "The bullet grazed the bone above the temple. It is it been half an inch lower or farther back, it must have killed him."

"Half an inch," repeated Vandervyn. His face crimsoned, and the veins of his forehead began to swell. "Where is the fellow? Did he get away? How long ago was it? Tell me, captain, Hardy. I'll run him down."

"Very good of you to offer," said Hardy. "But the rascal might ambush you. We'll order out a squad of police. Besides, I wish your report on your trip. I presume Redbear is at the agency."

"No," Vandervyn turned a scowling face towards the butte, as if angrily eager to be off in pursuit of the would-be assassin. "Charlie went back to Thunderbolt's camp to see if his sister was getting along all right with the old chief. He had better stay a few days. If he and the girl make themselves agreeable, we shall have a better chance to quiet the tribe."

"You found conditions still unfavorable?" "Yes. All the chiefs took a violent dislike to me and they all turned up the whole tribe. Charlie and I talked and talked. You know a white man can talk Indians into anything, if he keeps at it."

"What result?" snapped Hardy. "Vandervyn made some impression, especially on old Thunderbolt. The chiefs no doubt would be willing to let you visit the camps on safe conduct, so to speak; but I doubt if they could keep the wild set of the young bucks in hand. This shooting proves it. I tell you, captain, one of us 'ere would think any man the least of you if you cut the whole business."

"I shall start for the mountains to-morrow," "Tomorrow?" remonstrated Marie. "You would not want to wait at least until it has begun to heel. And in the meantime Redbear and Otna will be talking it over and his camp into a milder mood."

"That last is a most excellent argument," said Hardy, and his firmly compressed lips curved in a smile at the girl. "I shall take your advice, Miss Dupont."

Vandervyn had frowned over the concern in Marie's voice. Hardy's response started the veins of his forehead swelling. He looked off away from the two, and muttered in a casual voice, "I'll ride in ahead and order out a squad of policemen to track down the scoundrel. Jake can interpret, if I'm unable to make them understand."

"Good!" said Hardy. Vandervyn shot at Marie a glance of jealous anger, and put spurs to his pluto. But when they reached the valley and saw through the glasses the squad of police only just leaving the agency, Marie conjectured that the faded photo had slowed to a walk while going up the valley. At last Marie and Hardy reached the agency. With the assistance of Vandervyn, who came out of the Dupont house to meet them, he was helped down from his mare to a cot in the shady porch. Here in the open air Marie washed the wound and took several stitches to draw the edges together.

these months, when you know as well as I—But of course, if you do not trust me, I have no show against him. He is free. I am, as you know, tied down by the uncertainty of my position."

"That is quite sad, is it not?" she mused. "I am, as you know, tied down by the uncertainty of my position. Whether or not there is any uncertainty about my position, I am not bound to anyone, nor am I bound to bind myself to anyone."

"Why are you so hard to me?" he pleaded. "You know that if my uncle got over a hint that I am interested in a girl out here it would be all off with me. He doesn't know what you are like, and it would be impossible in writing to convince him how charming you are."

"What a misfortune! Only, as it happens, I have no wish to marry Senator Clamont. He already has a wife."

"That's just it—a wife and half a dozen daughters. It's all cut and dried that I am to marry Ella, the oldest unmarried one."

"Ah—so that is why—" faltered Marie, the rich color ebbing from her cheeks. But she was only momentarily overcome. Her spirit rallied almost as soon as it drooped. "It is most kind of you, Mr. Vandervyn, to tell me the delightful secret. Permit me to congratulate you."

"His brows puckered in a doleful frown. "You are cruel to take it that way. I don't love the girl. You ought to know that—I'm in it! Even if it wasn't for Ella, there'd all think of you as an agency girl. I wouldn't stand a ghost of a chance of being appointed agent when Hardy quits."

"Does he intend to quit?" "If you turn him down, he'll leave just as soon as he finds the tribe still against him. Then—don't you see, sweetheart—I shall get the appointment as agent. Your father and I can slip into the little old mine as fast as we please. It's a real mine, sweetheart. In a few months we'll have enough ore shipped to the smelter for me to cut loose from my uncle and do as I please. You know what that means."

As he came toward her, his eyes softly glowing, his arms open to embrace her. And again she eluded him, this time with no hesitancy or wavering. Her smile showed she was once more in control of her emotions.

"Aren't you rather previous, Reg?" she asked. "We are not yet engaged." "You coquette!" he cried. "You know I can't formally propose to you until I have got rid of Ella."

"How honorable you are!" she praised him, and he could detect no irony in her voice or look. Vandervyn smiled an oath. "By—I'll have you yet! You shall get away from me!"

"Indeed!" she mocked, though she quivered from the passionate ardor in his voice. To cover her emotion she shrined as only women do of French blood can shrug. "That is to be seen, Mr. Vandervyn. And now, if you'll kindly excuse me, I must give a full share of my time to my other devoted suitors."

She slipped out onto the porch before Vandervyn could interpose. He muttered a curse and went into the dining room to get one of Dupont's whiskey bottles out of the dainty little sideboard.

CHAPTER X. At the Broken Mountain. When, at dusk, Dupont rode up to his house, Hardy was still on the cot on the porch. Vandervyn stood at the far end, pulling hard at a cigar as he watched Dupont appear. He checked Vandervyn's words—or it may have been to redouble his ardor through jealousy—she spent as much time as possible in Hardy's company. She was so gracious that Hardy began to show openly that he thought he might have a fighting chance to win her. This made Vandervyn furious. Yet he had to restrain himself from any outburst.

Noon of the fourth day Hardy stood at dinner that he was quite himself again and would start on the trip into the mountains the next morning. Redbear had not yet returned to the agency, and Dupont, in his friendliest manner, offered his services as interpreter until the halfbreed should join the party.

When Hardy accepted, this offered Vandervyn looked at her in his guileless way and remarked, in a casual tone: "With the trip so uneasy, I suppose you will want me to stay here and look after Marie."

Marie objected: "I am a member of the tribe. If I am going with him," "No," cried Vandervyn. "I cannot permit that," declared Hardy. "Oh, yes, you can and will," confidently replied the girl. "I shall be in no danger. If anyone is attacked, it will be you only."

Unobtrusively, Vandervyn's look, Dupont paused with a knife of food hanging to his mouth, and with his daughter. "Ain't none of 'em," he wanted to lift her scalp. She'd be safer in me and you, Mr. Van—which is good as saying dead safe."

WILLIAM PENN HIGHWAY, NEW YORK EXTENSION, NEAR EASTON

This Roadway Will Be Dedicated By Two Governors With Elaborate Ceremonies at Noon, Nov. 2

The photograph shows a section of the new concrete length in the William Penn Highway, New York Extension, near Easton. The total length of the completed work is eight miles, and four additional miles from Bethlehem to Allentown will be built in the spring. Governors Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania and F. J. Dwyer of New Jersey will officiate at the formal dedicatory exercises to be held midway on the highway at noon Thursday, November 2.

All of the governors of the William Penn Highway will be present at the dedication. The arterial roads in the William Penn Highway and extensions now include the main thoroughfare from the western Pennsylvania line through Pittsburgh, Johnstown, Allentown, Reading and Harrisburg, Philadelphia, the New York Extension from Reading through Allentown and Easton, Pa., and Philadelphia, N. J., the Baltimore and Washington Extension, through Gettysburg.

PENN HIGHWAY IS FOR $5,000,000 AND AUTO MONEYS

Board of Governors of William Penn Association Go On Record at Johnstown

PERMANENT ROADS WANTED

Believe All Roads Constructed Hereafter Should Have Maintenance Built Into Them at Beginning.

The William Penn Highway Association, which on November 2, at Easton, will formally dedicate the first concrete length on its New York extension, went on record at its October meeting in Johnstown the other day as favoring Gov. Brumbaugh's suggestion that the next legislative appropriation $5,000,000 for permanent road building in 1917 and $5,000,000 in 1918; and that all the automobile license money, totalling about $5,000,000 for the two years, be devoted to road maintenance.

The William Penn Association is absolutely opposed to the use of any but permanent materials in new road building. It believes that maintenance should be built into a road.

The association has also given its approval to the project to bond the state for $50,000,000 for the construction of permanent roads. This association, which has headquarters at Harrisburg, has 2,000 members in Pennsylvania; and the list is increasing at the rate of 200 a week.

The board voted to increase the number of road governors in counties of over 350,000 population from one to three; and the committee chairman likewise. This means that the number of advisory counties there will be three William Penn governors.

Will Plant Trees. The State Agricultural Department is making plans for the planting of thousands of trees and shrubs along the highway. The William Penn Highway, its New York and Washington extensions.

The next meeting of the board of governors of the William Penn arterial road system will be held in Reading in November, when the governors will be the guests of the Reading Chamber of Commerce.

Easton Event a Hammer. Secretary M. H. James of the William Penn Association reported to the board of governors at Johnstown that the ceremonies incident to the formal opening of the William Penn New York extension at Easton, Nov. 2, will surpass anything of the sort ever held in the eastern states.

Governor Maria G. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania and Governor James S. Fieider of New Jersey will be in attendance. Special trains will operate from Scranton, Harrisburg, New York and Philadelphia. The ceremonies will take place in the center of an eight-mile length of concrete recently completed between Easton and Bethlehem. There's a huge silk barrier will be erected and Governor Brumbaugh and Fieider will cut this away as an indication that a new highway to New York is on its way to completion. From Easton a fleet of 500 automobiles will transport guests to the scene of the extension, while a similar number of cars will be operated from Allentown.

The William Penn Highway is the Pennsylvania division of the Pike's Peak Ocean-to-Ocean road. At Reading the New York extension branches to the northeast, passing through Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton and Philadelphia. When finally constructed the highway will cut 30 miles from the distance between Harrisburg, Pa., and New York.

Officials of the Pike's Peak road are coming from Colorado Springs, Colo., and Chillicothe, Mo., for the event. It is estimated that not less than 10,000 persons will be present when Gov. Fieider and Brumbaugh cut away the silk barrier at noon November 2.

erected across the road in the center of the eight miles of concrete. A speakers' stand will be erected, from which the Governors, Charles M. Schwab and other orators will be introduced by William Jennings of Harrisburg, president of the William Penn Highway. A section of one of the large Ringling Bros. shows will be erected near the scene; and in it free luncheons will be served. Automobile transportation from Easton, Allentown, Bethlehem and other Pennsylvania points, as well as Philadelphia, N. J., will be free.

Expect Many Thousands. The William Penn Highway Association expects many thousands of people at the dedication. Two of the leading film "travellers" have informed the Association that they will film the event for the moving picture theaters of the country. Souvenirs are to be given to all who attend.

Has Many Members. There are now over 2,000 individual members of the William Penn Highway Association, and hundreds of them will be present at the ceremonies October 26. Membership in the Association is secured simply by forwarding $1 to the treasurer, David Barry, cashier of the First National Bank of Johnstown, or to the secretary, M. H. James, Harrisburg. The Association is for permanent roads, and its members are interested in the Association's work for the good roads idea. The Association believes that the construction of highways, that service, and the use of long-term bonds, is an economic blunder. The roads are gone long before the refunding is completed. Bonds should pay for permanent roads only. Maintenance should be built into the road. Each year of road service should be paid for in that year. This is the attitude of the William Penn Highway promoters.

The William Penn Highway is Pennsylvania's greatest market road and scenic route. It connects Philadelphia and Pittsburgh through the central part of Pennsylvania, connecting it passes through the state's prettiest scenery and brings farms and their products closer by many hours to the market. Its ultimate completion will mean cheaper farm products for city dwellers and larger returns for the agriculturist because of improved market conditions. In the counties adjoining the highway, and immediately adjacent, live over six million Pennsylvanians, every one of whom will be benefited directly or indirectly through the completion of the thoroughfare. The New York extension, and the Baltimore-Washington extension—south from Harrisburg through Gettysburg, are quite as important as the main road.

PROMINENT MEN MEMBERS. Many prominent Pennsylvanians are honorary members of the William Penn Highway Association. The list includes Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate; Col. Harry C. Stricker, Allentown; the Hon. E. J. Stackpole, Harrisburg; the Hon. Boies Penrose, Philadelphia; the Hon. George T. Oliver, Pittsburgh; the Hon. Vance C. McCormick, Harrisburg; the Hon. Martin G. Brumbaugh, governor of Pennsylvania; Edward W. Bok, Philadelphia; Lewis A. Park, Pittsburgh; William Penn, Terre Haute, Ind.; the Hon. Edward E. Bledeman, Harrisburg, and many others.

His Remarks. "I met a man today who knew you intimately in your old home town," stated old Peter of Pennsylvania. "What did he have to say about me?" asked the Hon. Roy Lowden, evidently expecting a compliment. "I stopped him too soon to learn much. I told him I didn't care to listen to such language."—Kansas City Star.

High Standards. Black-Bos Black ever paid you that ten dollars he borrowed two years ago? "White—No. I offered to call it square for five, but he said he could not lower his business standards by a 50 per cent. settlement!"

Though He Saw No Smoke, He Did Not Look in Vain.

smoke of the shot. But though he saw no smoke, he did not look in vain. Above a bowlder, high up in a cliff, he perceived a devilish painted face, surrounded by a war bonnet.

He glanced sideways up the ridge slope at Vandervyn. The young man had baited his pony on the ridge crest and was starting back down at Hardy.

Hardy waved to him imperatively. "Go on!" he shouted. "Guard Miss Dupont. May be more of them. Send the police around to flank."

Vandervyn's plume leaped out of sight. A shot grazed the mare's withers. In a flash he flung up his rifle and fired at the dove-piercing devilish trigger.

Swift as a puma, he sprang around the mare's head and dashed up the slope, keeping a large bowlder in line between himself and his enemy. A bullet came pingling down over the bowlder and passed under his upraised arm. A few seconds more and, safe behind the huge stone, he slowly ejected his hat above the top. The ancient ruse drew a shot. Instantly he scrambled obliquely upward towards another bowlder. It was a desperate move. A bullet grazed his thigh as he flung himself behind the bushes beside the second bowlder. Hardy waited.

OCTOBER DAYS

The haunt of Robin's the primrose brae.
The summer joy the flicker follows.
How cheerily they're her shortening day.
Is Autumn in her woods of yellow.
Have you noticed the wealth of color on the trees and bushes? All the greens, yellows and browns you have ever heard tell of are blended most beautifully in the forests nearby. Take a ride out on the line towards Brown-sville, Martin, Phillips, Fairbance, Latrobe or Irwin and see what a delightful trip it makes. When the corn is in the shock and the frost is on the pumpkin are grand days to go chestnut hunting in the mountains. Take your family or friends and enjoy a bright clear autumn day in the woods.
